Considers:

Dr Duncan Chetcuti Ganado, Senior Veterinary Officer at the Veterinary Regulations Directorate, testified that the department officers went on inspection on a farm just above the fireworks factory of Santa Katarina in Zurrieq following a report regarding animals poorly kept on a farm.

The witness and two other officials went on the 2nd May 2013 but did not manage to enter. The following day, i.e. 3rd May 2013 the officers were accompanied by the accused Shawn Cassar who informed them that the field where animals were kept belonged to his wife. On this field the officers found 8 dogs which although were well-fed and in a good state of health. Some of these dogs were micro-chipped whilst others were not. The main concerns for the dogs were that (i) their housing conditions were extremely inadequate – for example, a pure breed Alaskan Malamite was housed in a kennel which was not large enough and thus had very little moving space. It necessitated that there was the need to protect this dog from the extremes of heat. The flooring had to be smoother to allow the dog to roam comfortably. Moreover, the dog was tied with a lead which limited his movement; (ii) the dogs found on the farm had no shelter.

The officers also found two horses which were found to be in a good state of nutrition and health. One of the horses needed a larger stable with better ventilation and shelter.

The officers also found six adult female goats, two adult male goats and two young ones, 3 pot-bellied pigs and ten geese all sharing the same area. The overall area of the shed was too small. There was insufficient ventilation, light and the water was very dirty. The goats were untagged and the premises was not registered to hold neither small ruminants nor pigs.

The goats were tested and Mr Cassar signed a declaration that he would not move any animals in or out of the farm. The accused were instructed to upgrade the farm to acceptable standards and to have the dogs micro-chipped.

On the 1st September 2015 another inspection was carried out on site and it was recognized that the overall situation was greatly improved mainly the issues regarding the housing standards.

The accused Gillian Cassar testified. She stated that she rented the field in question to keep pets for her children. She stated that the goats and the pigs were slaughtered and disposed of as evidenced by the documents exhibited by herself. With regards to the number of dogs found on the farm during the first inspection she stated that six dogs were actually hers, the others just entered the farm because it was easily accessible.

On the basis of the evidence and documents produced in the course of the proceedings the Court deems that all the charges have been sufficiently proven.

With regards to the punishment to be meted out, the Court is taking into consideration the nature of the crimes, the circumstances of the case, the record sheet of the accused and the fact that the accused have fully cooperated with the veterinary department and in the meantime upgraded the premises as directed.

For these reasons the Court after having seen article 8(2)(3) of Chapter 439, and article 35(1)(c)(iii) of Chapter 437, regulation 5 of Subsidiary Legislation 36.28, regulation 4 of Subsidiary Legislation 437.101, regulation 3(2) and 9(2) of Subsidiary Legislation 36.32 and article 105(b) of Chapter 36 of the Laws of Malta finds the accused guilty of the charges brought against them and thus condemns each one of them to pay a fine of seven hundred and fifty euro (€750).
